

Homework – Pros and Cons of Social Media

As many people know, social media has replaced the traditional methods of communicating making the world more connected. We use social media every day for reading news, sharing pictures or videos and of course, sending messages to our family members. There are many types of social media but probably, the most famous one is Facebook. Facebook has been one of the first websites able to connect a huge number of people spread all over the world with a simple click of the mouse. But it is not the only one. After a couple of years since the rise of Facebook, other similar websites have appeared on the web with a similar intent.

Today a significant amount of our lives, starting from the holidays until to our professional experiences, [add comma] have been posted on the web. Of course, these media have simplified our way to communicate but there are also some negative aspects that we should face off. In fact, when we spend too much time on these websites, the main risk is that people could lose their human touch and feeling s toward their friends. Sometimes also relationships between parents and kids might be affected by the use of social media. Teenagers tends to spend more and more time on the web and as a consequence, they don't talk enough with their parents.

~~So, what I think is~~ Therefore, I believe [more formal] that social media, as well as technology devices, could be a great opportunity to make friends and to helping us to keep relationships going with people from other countries; but there are many negative aspects that we should face off.
